

AIIC outreach at its best in Budapest

VEGA – AIIC’s dedicated outreach group – held its first-ever interregional event on Friday 22

March at Budapest’s ELTE University. The 70+ participants learnt first-hand about the Association and the future of the profession

from Vice-President Paco García Hurtado, and heard behind-the-scenes secrets about the comedy Chuchotage from its director,

Budapest local Barnabás Tóth. Add to that:

an interactive VEGA - PRIMS BarCamp, dynamic involvement by numerous AIIC groups and committees, and an engaging interregional meeting of VEGA representatives from near and far. All up: productive, fruitful and inspiring.

Rendez-vous de l’interprétation à Montréal

AIIC Canada has an exciting agenda of outreach and training events around the next AIIC PRIMS meeting, scheduled for 24-

25 August in Montreal. Why not seize the moment and navigate the nuances of Canadian French, discover Canada’s Indigenous languages, learn more about interpreter health and safety and distance interpreting, or improve your negotiating and marketing skills?

AIIC's secure place in the cloud

The AIIC Repository is here! Regional bureaux, groups and committees will soon have direct access to essential files and documents, via secure cloud storage. These include: photos and videos from past events; forms; an updated set of logs for all AIIC entities – including guidelines on using AIIC visual elements; and templates for business cards and PowerPoint presentations. The AB Brand & Visibility Group has been working with a graphic designer to refresh the AIIC look, and the logos held in the Repository include modifications that make the logo more contemporary, compact and versatile.

- The Secretariat will be in touch with office holders with details on how to access the Repository
- Regional bureaux will then contact their members with details about "Member of AIIC" logos and cards, and how they can be used.

Calling staff interpreters and students: AIIC Belgium reaches out

The Belgium AIIC Network of Trainers (BANT) outreach event for students, in Brussels on 11 May, will explain how AIIC benefits the profession and how to join.

Then, on 19 June, also in Brussels, AIIC Belgium Staff Outreach – ABSO – will present our Association to staff interpreters, explaining the advantages of becoming a member.

If you know such colleagues in Brussels and around... send them along!

Remote access to RSI workshops

During recent months several AIIC regions have hosted workshops and seminars on Remote Simultaneous Interpreting (RSI), a topic of interest and concern for many in the profession. AIIC is making the content of these sessions available to all its members, including those who haven't been able to attend, by offering video coverage via members.aiic.net. These initiatives have been undertaken in the spirit of eliciting an open conversation and honest exchange of information. The events do not in any way imply AIIC's endorsement or recommendation of RI platforms, nor should they be construed as AIIC backing any of the platforms presented.

How interpreters should take care of the tools of their trade

Our livelihoods depend on speaking and hearing, but if we do not take care of our voices and ears, the results may be unpleasant. In Golden Ears, Golden Tongues, Cyril Flerov offers guidance to help you protect and maintain the tools of your trade, especially if you travel a lot.

A tribute to colleagues past

ExCo has invited three colleagues to write personal tributes, on behalf of the Association, to Suzan Abul Farag, Graziella de Luis and Esmat Orensa, the AIIC interpreters who lost their lives in the Ethiopian Airlines disaster. These tributes will be published in the upcoming edition of Communicate!

AIC has been saddened to learn about the recent deaths of these members:

- Ms Jacqueline Harding (France, 17 March 2019)
- Ms Yoko Teichler-Urata (Germany, 16 March 2019)

If you know of any AIC members who have recently passed away and are not listed here, please inform the Secretariat.
